NCHRP-08-77: Developing Regional Historic Contexts for Post-World War II Housing: A Model for Identification and Evaluation

The Transportation Research Board of the National Academies is soliciting proposals to (1) develop a methodology for identifying and evaluating the National Register eligibility and non-eligibility of (a) post-World War II single family housing built between 1946 and 1975 that is not part of a planned or unplanned subdivision or neighborhood and (b) post-World War II single family housing developments built between 1946 and 1975 as a planned or unplanned subdivision or neighborhood; (2) develop a model historic context for a state or region for these types of properties; and (3) apply and test the model historic context in a state or region to demonstrate its utility to state DOTs and state historic preservation offices.

Proposers are asked to develop and include a detailed research plan for accomplishing the project objectives. Proposers are expected to describe research plans that can realistically be accomplished within the constraints of available funds and contract time. Proposals must present the proposers' current thinking in sufficient detail to demonstrate their understanding of the issues and the soundness of their approach to meeting the research objectives.
